Eva Etzioni-Halevy, The Divided People: Can Israel's Breakup Be Stopped?
(Lexington Books)

Calvin Goldscheider, Israel's Changing Society, 2nd ed.(Westview Press)

Robert. E. Litan and Yaakov. Kop, Sticking Together: The Israeli Experiment in Pluralism (Brookings Institution Press)

Zvi Zameret, The Melting Pot in Israel (SUNY Press)

There will also be articles from journals which will be assigned during the course of the semester. These will be announced in class.

Exams: There will be two examinations, each covering one-half of the semester's work. Each of the exams will be an essay exam, in which the student will be asked to answer approximately four out of six or seven questions presented. The questions will be based upon both the reading assignments and the class lectures and discussions.

Paper: There will also be a term paper, in which the student will select a topic germane to the course subject for analysis. Each student should prepare a suggested topic outline and a suggested bibliography which is due at the end of the third week of class. I will review them and return them with comments and suggestions, if any. The paper should be approximately 10 typed, double-spaced pages in length, and should also have proper documentation. The paper will be due two weeks before the last day of class.

Grading: This course is a Special Topics course and will be given as a seminar. Each class session will be devoted to the discussion of an assigned topic. Students are expected to participate in class, and participation will count toward 20 percent of the final grade. Therefore, attendance is required, and poor attendance will affect the final grade, which will be lowered one letter grade for each absence above three.

Exams = 30% each=60%
